

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Special thanks to Laurent Mucchielli who edited and organized the original French volume, La frénésie sécuritaire (Éditions La Découverte 2008) and who made possible the translations for the Carceral Notebooks. Thanks also to all the contributors for their extraordinary work on these essays, to the Éditions La Découverte for allowing the Carceral Notebooks to publish these essays in English, and to a number of institutions for supporting the translations, including the CESDIP (Centre de Recherches Sociologiques sur le Droit et les Institutions Pénales), the UMR (Unité Mixte de Recherche) on Comparative Law at the Université Paris I Panthéon-Sorbonne, and the UMR on Law and Social Change at the Université de Nantes. Thanks to Helen Arnold for translating the contributions by Aubusson, Heilmann, Mouhanna, Mucchielli, Rigouste, and Slama.

I would also like to extend a special thanks to Lynne Goldin at Publishing Data Management for all her assistance and patience producing and type-setting the essays, to Nick Papaserafchim for maintaining the website of the Carceral Notebooks, and to Scott Kelly for his continued support and encouragement and for printing and publishing these Carceral Notebooks. Special thanks to Chris Berk and Diana Watral at the University of Chicago and to Sam Lim at Yale Law School for their assistance with the editing and proofing of the English translations. I also thank Sebastien Greppo at the Paris Center of the University of Chicago who hosted a wonderful conference on these essays and I thank again the Paris Center for all its support.
